

BENEFITS OF ACCREDITATION

WERS FOR FILM

WERS stands for the Window Energy Rating Scheme, an annual energy performance tool that enables consumers to compare the energy efficiency of glazing products. WERS ratings meet AFRC requirements, comply with the National Construction Code, and can be used to meet regulatory requirements.

WERS For Film is a stand alone program within WERS. There are four parts to the program:

1. Films get rated by an independent laboratory
2. Installers become WERS For Film accredited by completing an online training program
3. The consumer can select an accredited window film installer, who can advise on the most appropriate energy-rated films
4. Accredited installers can issue WERS for Film certificates, which their customers can use to prove the energy efficiency rating of their window with film now installed

Distinction
Position your business as an 'energy expert', with the skills and training necessary to deliver robust and effective energy solutions.

Credentials
Window film installation is not a licenced trade, so accreditation is the best way to demonstrate credibility and create a compelling point of difference from your competitors.

Qualification
Exclusive authority to issue energy certificates, which can be used by assessors when determining a building's energy rating.

Future-proofing
Access to information and training that ensures your business is equipped to capitalise on rising interest in reducing the energy consumption and carbon emissions of the built environment.

THREE STEPS TO ACCREDITATION

- 1 Achieve WFAANZ Architectural Window Film certification
- 2 Attend a WERS For Film webinar
- 3 Pay the annual accreditation fee

TRAINING

Managed by the Window Film Association of Australia and New Zealand (WFAANZ), WERS For Film training is completed online. WFAANZ members receive significant discounts for accreditation:

- One off accreditation & training fee (WFAANZ member): $800 + GST
- One off accreditation & training fee (non member): $1220 + GST

THE ONLY INDEPENDENT ACCREDITATION PROGRAM IN AUSTRALIA FOR WINDOW FILM INSTALLERS

wfaanz.org.au/WERS
info@wfaanz.org.au